

columbiaAlder

Refined or rustic...

The fine, light grain pattern and consistent color of Columbia Alder veneer, in a range of grades primarily planked and offering limited bookmatched appearance options that creates the aesthetics to enhance most unique projects.

Pleasing, uniform colors with hues from honey to pale brown with little visible boundary between heart and sap.

Alder panels availability through Columbia combined with abundant alder lumber and moulding options already in the market help assure design, fabrication and finishing success.

Making the Grade

Photos below depict a representative range to expect when specifying grade.

A Grade

Our A Grade provides the cleanest and most uniform combination of natural characteristics and color within the Columbia Alder offering.

B Grade

Our B Grade provides a happy medium in alder, with a balanced combination of natural characteristics.

C Grade

Our rustic C Grade provides the most concentrated level of natural characteristics within the Columbia Alder offering.

Book Match

While alder is most commonly plank-matched, Columbia Alder can be specified as a book match. The photo at right depicts a representative range of color and natural characteristics to expect when specifying this match.
